Love Every Bite “Cooking for yourself can be an act of self-love,” says Elizabeth TenHouten, former model and author of Cooking Well: Beautiful Skin. “It’s a way to appreciate your body by nourishing it.” Here, she tells how to make eating pleasurable—not restrictive—to maximize the transformative power of healthy food.

- Make a dish you crave; you’ll delight in cooking and eating it more. (If it’s not healthy, find a version of it that is.)
- Set a beautiful table even if you’re the only one eating. “I often adorn my plate with edible flowers.”
- Enjoy every bite. “I mix foods on my plate to create a more flavorful bite.”
